

Best backpacker tents

WINNER

2018: Vango

2017: Vango

HIGHLY COMMENDED

2018: Robens, Quechua

2017: Quechua

2018 Tent Owner Satisfaction Awards update

Our definition: These are tents that are designed to be carried by individuals on walking (or cycling) trips. Ease of use is critical here – in terms of carrying, packing away and pitching on a nightly basis during trips away – as well as weight. These are products that have to perform.

Vango prevails again in this category, with Quechua pushed down from last year's runner-up spot by Robens.

Vango scored 90% with Robens close behind on 88%. There was an even tighter gap between second and third, with Quechua's overall score being 87%.

Brand	Satisfaction rating
Vango	90%
Robens	88%
Quechua	87%

Vango has a wide offering of tents for backpackers, with its Trekking and XD Trekking ranges and highly specialist F10 marque, plus some models from its Adventure range.

Please note: There are plenty of other specialist backpacker brands such as Hilleberg, Robert Saunders and Terra Nova but they didn't receive enough responses for further consideration this time around.